Information regarding your privacy:
Library circulation records are confidential under New York Law, Article 45, Section 4509. By law, we can discuss your borrowing record only with you, unless require to do so by court order. This is true for both adults and children. At NOPL & OCPL, after a minor's 8th birthday, the parent or guardian may obtain information about a child's circulation records only if the child is present and consents to the release of the information, or if the child is not present but provides written consent dated for each request.

Under New York State Law, I, the undersigned accept responsibility for all items borrowed on this card, agree to pay fines and fees, and report a lost card or address change.
